

Fab Mash
case study

Fab Mash Cardiff

Project: Fab Mash Takeaway
Budget: £230k
Completion date: April 2009
Architect: Orangepeel Design
Comments: Brian Harris (Client)

Fab Mash is an exciting new concept in fast food based on flavoured mashed potato. The restaurant features a 'Subway' style servery and limited seating area designed to provide a fast flow of customers. It's located in the heart of Cardiff's city centre near the Millennium Stadium and caters for huge demand during the various events held there.

How did you get Coccion Construction Limited involved in the project?
APT Marketing in Cheltenham introduced us to Orange Peel Design who in turn introduced us to Coccion Construction Ltd.

What were you trying to achieve from the project?
Our aim is to create a brand selling comfort food from an outlet which gives a stylish, contemporary feel to a traditional product.

Were you kept up to date during the construction phase of any alterations and cost issues?
Yes. In fact, we were often given options on how we could achieve what we wanted at different levels of cost.

How was your working relationship with the construction team during the construction work phase?
If only all builders were like this! They were very professional courteous, helpful and as passionate about the project as we were.

Were you satisfied with project on completion?
We were very pleased with the end result.

Were you satisfied with Coccion's after care service?
Most definitely yes. What impressed us most of all was the number of times they returned to the site after completion to continuously monitor if everything was to our satisfaction.

Do you have any future plans to use Coccion?
When we have another project they will be our first point of contact – we would only want to work with Coccion based on our first experience.
